

JOHN NABER

John Naber is more than a champion swimmer. After earning five Olympic medals in 1976, he was honored as the Nation's outstanding amateur athlete, was inducted into the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame, and served as Director and Olympic Flag bearer at the Games in Los Angeles. He has carried the Olympic Flame as part of three different Olympic Torch Relays.

He was twice elected as the President of the U.S. Olympians, and was chosen in a USA Today nationwide poll as the male captain of the "Xerox 100 Golden Olympians", an all-star collection of the country's greatest Olympic champions.

Professionally, he is an "observer of excellence". As a celebrity, he's met with business and political leaders, and as a television announcer, he's covered over thirty different Olympic sports, filing reports from eight Olympic Games, including the Olympic Winter Games in Salt Lake City.

Along the way, John has discovered the method champions in all walks of life use to reach their goals, and he shares this process with audiences from around the globe. His book, "Awaken the Olympian Within" has earned rave reviews from the Olympic and professional community as well as various best-selling authors and motivators.

Before we hear from John, let's go back in time to those magical moments of his Olympic triumphs...

(Olympic Highlight video footage begins)